You can chat with costumed historians as they work the tasks of the past, and be inspired by the stories of early 19th-century rural New England life. On any given day, see the blacksmith, potter, cabinetmaker, and printer at work, catch special music or storytelling performances, smell the aroma of food cooking over the hearth, learn how textiles are processed from raw materials to finished clothing, find 400+ heirloom plants growing in the gardens, visit with cattle, sheep, pigs, and chickens, and more!

We will be staying at The Publick House Historic Inn in Sturbridge, Massachusetts, where mouthwatering homemade cuisine and comfortable accommodations become your home away from home. Relish in the ambiance created by one of New England's greatest historical inns.
